

You accidentally buy the $10,000 ticket on StubHub, rather than one of the more reasonably priced options. You lose your car, your home, and your Xbox. Your family leaves you, calling you a maniac for spending so much money on tickets to a show. Within months, you're driven mad and in the streets howling "Blue Eyes Crying in the Rain" at the sky, demanding answers from a silent God. You are given none. The year 2016 proves to have been just a teaser for the suffering and chaos you experience in 2017. You go see Willie Nelson at the Granada on Jan. 3. It's a great show.
