These committees will help us better address the pressing challenges facing our city and offer innovative and data-driven solutions. Separating the former Economic Development & Housing Committee into two smaller committees will help us to drill down further into critical issues and better implement our strategies in these areas. Additionally, the creation of two new committees — Environment and Sustainability and Workforce, Education, and Equity — will provide us with prominent platforms to emphasize and address resilience and our renewed investment in our greatest asset: the people of Dallas.

A briefing on the Dallas City Council 2020 calendar and amended 2019 calendar, which will include proposed committee meeting dates through the end of next year, is scheduled for Wednesday, October 16, 2019. We will vote on both the new and amended calendars at the October 23, 2019 agenda meeting.

Thank you for your patience and for your input throughout this process. I am eager to work with you as we continue to move Dallas forward.

If you have any questions or concerns, please drop by.

Best regards,

Eric Johnson
Mayor
